FINANCIAL & COMMERCIAL.

SATURDAY EVENING, Doc. 9, 1865 The report of Secretary McCulloch is re garded in all parts of the country as a mo rsetleal, judicions and business-like doe nent, and with a few exceptions as to min natters its suggestions and recommends ions are fully approved. The perspicuit with which the Secretary gives his vie he clearness with which he states the pri iples of his policy, and the logical manwhich he answers the objections raise to that policy, are marked features of this able state prper, and strongly impress the bservant reader both as to the enlarged experience of the Secretary, and the pr and study be has given to all branches his important subject. And this experience and study brings the Secretary to the meyitable conclusion that the business of the country is in an unhealthy condition-sp dative, feverish and uncertain-and t every day that contraction is deferred inreases the difficulty of preventing a financial collapse." Contraction can be accomshed, the Secretary believes, "without nock to trade, and without a diminution of In relation to the numerous plans su
